TEACH THE SPORT FOR LIFE

As a central part of thriving communities, teachers always look for new ways to bring subjects to life for students. With Net Generation, the USTA is committed to helping teachers introduce tennis in PE classes and after-school programs.

Net Generation encourages kids to become engaged and challenge themselves with a new standard of play. The easy-to-follow curricula help teachers share the game for individuals, so they can embrace all their own pace. More importantly, it uses tennis as a pathway to personal development beyond the court.

RESOURCES AND PROGRAMS

Curriculum programs under that direction are designed to introduce all ages to the sport. We offer activities in both traditional and non-traditional settings. Try out our performance activities and learn why you play tennis.

Net Generation is a curriculum developed by the USTA. The content is available for free on our website and includes detailed challenge cards to use on the court.
